Kazakhstan's Offshore Operations PSA draft law

Kazakhstan is currently ready to submit the Offshore Operations Production Sharing Agreement draft law to parliament. Separate provisions of this draft law have been recently discussed in parliament.

After a recent parliamentary meeting, Daniyal Akhmetov instructed concerned ministries and departments to introduce all relevant comments made at the meeting into the draft law, and to submit the document to parliament, read a press release.

According to the press release, Akhmetov indicated that the draft law complies with modern standards and takes into account the changed reality in the oil and gas sector. Speaking regarding the clause in the document concerning the stability of contracts signed with investors, the PM underscored that this item is extremely important, in that it guarantees the observance of earlier achieved agreements, the press release pointed out.
